Community Handbook

What's this about?

Hey there!

If you are a visitor and searching for WiFi, the place you are looking for is the kitchen! You will find a QR code in back by the speakers, that should cover your needs. And don't worry, I'm not mad if you skip the rest of this document ;).

If you are or want to become a part of our floor-community: This document is for you!

First of all: Thank you, for checking out our community handbook! Communication is the most important ingredient to a harmonizing community, and you have just made the first step!

Don't worry, this is not a pagelong contract you need to sign with blood and sell your soul to the devil. Quite the contrary actually! We are trying to build and maintain an open and respectful community with one primary rule:

Just talk! :)

Everyone is encouraged to speak their mind, bring new ideas, raise complaints or just chat and have fun! Of course in turn you are asked to have an open ear for the others and respect their wishes.

Unfortunately every community needs some place to dump all the organizational context, so that is what this document is for: A place to look up whom to ask, what to do or where to go for your needs!

1 The folks around

Hey, you made it to the chapters! Let's start by introducing ourselves, shall we?

1.1 Room U13: Robin Epple

Hi, my name is Robin and I'm 23 years old. I am currently in my computer science master and work as a web developer besides that. Because of my work I am not always around in the dorm. Usually between the semesters I'll move to my hometown, since this is closer to my office. But during the lecture time you'll find me around!

If you want to find my, start looking in the kitchen ;) I love to cook for dinner and always appreciate some company, so if you're interested in joining some day, just react to my announcement in chat!

And one more thing: In my bachelors I lived in a flat, that's why I came here with a lot of household equipment. So if you are in need of something like a screwdriver or a vacuum, feel free to ask, maybe I can help!

I'm looking forward to meeting you!

2 The dorm-life

In this chapter we want to give you a quick overview on what we do as a community and how you can participate!

5 Whom to ask for ... ?

To wrap things up, in the following you'll find a list of responsibilities: What belongs to whom, who's in charge or has the credentials, etc.:

Item	Responsible Person	Room Number	Remarks
GitHub Account	Robin Epple	U 13	username: fichtenweg17u
Google Account	Robin Epple	U 13	fichtenweg17u@gmail.com
Speakers	Robin Epple	U 13	I bought them, but they are supposed to be free to use for everyone. See section 2.2 for details.
WhatsApp Group	Florian Franitza	U 11	(Group Admin)
WiFi	Robin Epple	U 13	By default we wouldn't have WiFi in the Kitchen, so I extended my guest-WiFi over there. See section 2.3 for details.
